Second Language Pragmatics and English Language Education in East Asia-Cynthia Law 2010-12-18 This edited collection addresses the link between second language pragmatics (including interlanguage and intercultural) research and English language education. The chapters use different contemporary research methods and theoretical frameworks such as conversation analysis, language-learners-as-ethnographers, discourse and interactional approaches and data in contexts (either in the region or overseas). The content explores and discusses the significance of learning and teaching of second language (L2) pragmatics in language education for learners who use English as a lingua franca for academic and intercultural communication purposes with native and non-native speakers of English, focusing on pragmatic actions, social behaviours, perceptions and awareness levels in three regions in East Asia – China, Japan and South Korea. It is an important contribution to the area of second language pragmatics in language education for East Asian learners. It recommends research-informed pedagogies for the learning and teaching of interlingual or intercultural pragmatics in regions and places where similar cultural beliefs or practices are found. This is an essential read for researchers, language-learners, classroom teachers, readers who are interested in second language pragmatics research and those interested in second language acquisition and English language education in the East Asian context.

Understanding Pathogen Behaviour-M. Griffiths 2005-07-30 Pathogens respond dynamically to their environment. Part two reviews the behaviour of particular pathogens, reviewing virulence, stress response and resistance mechanisms in such pathogens as Salmollena, E.coli and Campylobacter. The final part of the book assesses how these pathogens react and adapt to particular stresses from heat treatment and the effects of low temperature to the use of disinfectants and sanitizers.
